Q I am interested in becoming a qualified tax preparer. How do I go about being certified?

A Over 22 million tax returns are filed each year and taxes continue to become more and more complex. There is a need for qualified tax professionals. Depending upon your background, you can choose to become a professional accountant and specialize in tax which may take years. You may also choose to take an introductory tax course through a community college or university.

If you want a more practical approach to tax preparation, then you may want to take a course through a professional tax preparation firm such as Softron. The cost of course is tax deductible and eligible for part-time education deduction.

Two courses are available: Level 1 and Advance Course. Level 1 covers all aspects of personal taxation. Advance course covers business, corporations and trust.
